PREFATORY NOTE

THIS Handlist makes good the omission of Scottish and Welsh Record Publications from the Handlist of Record Publications produced by the British Records Association in 1951, which dealt exclusively with England.

The Scottish portion was completed in 1953 in the form in which it is now printed. Framed on the same general lines as the original Handlist, it is more exhaustive and differs in other ways as explained on p. 8.

The slips for the Welsh section were prepared in 1952 and have been put into form for publication by the compiler of the original Handlist, who was also responsible for editing this Handlist generally and for seeing it through the press.

R. SOMERVILLE.

SCOTTISH RECORD PUBLICATIONS

INTRODUCTION

THE scheme adopted in compiling the Scottish part of this Handlist differs in two ways from that of the original English Handlist. The arrangement of the sections naturally reflects the differences in legal, ecclesiastical and administrative organisation in Scotland, and the smaller field to be covered has allowed the inclusion of types of publication partly or wholly excluded from the English Handlist.

In compiling this Handlist it was sometimes found difficult to assign a mixed publication to a particular section. Any resulting obscurities have been minimised as far as possible by cross-references at the head of each section and in the index. In particular the user should refer both to the section on Deeds and Charters and to that on Miscellaneous Collections under the headings for Burghs, Religious Orders and Private Papers respectively. Publications which obstinately defied classification have been included in the last section of the Scottish part (no. 47).

As in the English Handlist, non-record publications of the societies have been excluded. These include liturgical works, chronicles, narratives and journals. Official publications (including those of the Historical Manuscripts Commission), Law Reports and those records of the General Assembly and Convention of Royal Burghs which are published annually have also been excluded. No strict rule, however, has been laid down excluding appendices to secondary historical works or works not published in strict record form but which consist almost entirely of extracts from records. Short publications of a few documents have often been mentioned where these occur in the Miscellanies of the publishing societies or in the transactions of learned societies. Privately printed works and some small local publications in pamphlet form have also been included.

The numbers or letters used in referring to the works of the societies are usually those to be found in C. S. Terry's Scottish Historical Clubs, 1780-1908 and in C. Matheson's continuation of that work covering the period 1908-1927, but where a society has published several series the series reference is given, not that from the continuous numbering of Terry and Matheson. In the case of publications since 1927 or of those not listed by Terry and Matheson the date of publication has been quoted where no number is available.

In preparing this List we have had the benefit of the advice of Mr. C. T. McInnes, Curator of Historical Records, H.M. General Register House. Our thanks are also due to the staffs of the National Library of Scotland, the Library of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland and the Lyon Office.
